

Stacy Cook

Stacy Cook is a Principal at Perception Learning where she specializes in creating and delivering training programs aligned with organizational development and change management initiatives.

Previously, Ms. Cook worked with FMP Consulting, a human capital consulting firm in Arlington, VA where she led FMP's Learning and Development Center of Excellence. Prior to joining FMP, Stacy served a tour with the Department of Defense Task Force for Business and Stability Operations in Iraq. Stationed in Baghdad, she led a mix of government and contractor teams in organizational development efforts designed to revitalize the economy of Iraq.

In addition to being a Kirkpatrick Certified Facilitator, Ms. Cook has conducted over 3,000 hours of classroom training on subjects related to performance management, resilience, presentation skills, meeting effectiveness, leadership development, and many more.

Ms. Cook holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Political Science, International Studies, and Russian Language from the University of Wisconsin. She also holds a Master of Arts in Adult Learning and Leadership from the Teachers College of Columbia University in New York City. She has led a variety of public presentations on the topic of Learning and Development, including the ATD International Conference and Exposition and the SHRM Annual Conference.

Kirkpatrick
Partners

The Standard for Leveraging and Validating Talent Investments™