

Christopher Howell

Christopher Howell is responsible for a project resource management team within the education department of a large healthcare organization. His team manages the intake, implementation, execution, tracking and reporting of all initiatives.

Previously, Christopher served and retired from the U.S. Army as a healthcare administration officer. While in the military he served as a medic, healthcare officer, and senior healthcare instructor. He was directly responsible for team-building, leading, teaching, mentoring and implementing graduate-level military training in leadership. Christopher is very knowledgeable in leadership, healthcare, process improvement, data assessment, business analytics, training design and delivery.

In his current position, Christopher has implemented the four levels of evaluation for five different departments to date. He ensures that the Kirkpatrick methodology is woven into the organization's culture.

Christopher is a certified professional in talent development, a certified change practitioner, a certified black belt in Lean Six Sigma and is also a gold level Kirkpatrick certified professional.

Kirkpatrick
Partners

The Standard for Leveraging and Validating Talent Investments™